What are cookies?

A cookie is a small file of letters and numbers that we store on your browser or the hard drive of your computer if you agree. Cookies contain information that is transferred to your computer's hard drive. Cookies cannot be programmed to carry viruses, and cannot install malware on the host computer.

Our use of cookies

Our website/application uses cookies to distinguish you from other users of our website/application. This helps us to provide you with a good experience when you browse our website/application and also allows us to improve our site/application. By continuing to browse the site/application, you are agreeing to our use of cookies.

We use the following cookies:

- Strictly necessary cookies. These are cookies that are required for the operation of our website/application. They include, for example, cookies that enable you to log into secure areas of our website/application, use a shopping cart or make use of e-billing services.
- Analytical/performance cookies. They allow us to recognise and count the number of visitors and to see how visitors move around our website/application when they are using it. This helps us to improve the way our website/application works, for example, by ensuring that users are finding what they are looking for easily.
- Functionality cookies. These are used to recognise you when you return to our website/application. This enables us to personalise our content for you, greet you by name and remember your preferences (for example, your choice of language or region).
- Targeting cookies. These cookies record your visit to our website/application, the pages you have visited and the links you have followed. We will use this information to make our website/application and the advertising displayed on it more relevant to your interests. We may also share this information with third parties for this purpose.
